

NEGATIVITY

Jennifer Lovatt

My mind is clogged and not free to write
Every word I put down feels like a fight.
It's difficult to be interested in things about
It's hard to write happily – there-s something missed out.

I think about books and can't remember the author
I think of a story and lose the plots
I can't keep going from this to that
Without getting muddled to overload.

I used to write a few years back
I'd think of a subject and write it down flat
In one go the words would flow
When I looked at the paper there was no way to go.

Don't get disheartened and let this get you down
Look at your forehead, you're so full of frowns
There are people who manage to spew forth words
When compared with my own they read absurd.

People say "Good, you tried your best,"
But what I see's not a patch on the rest..
So meanwhile I'll keep just trotting along,
Moaning and groaning is my song.
